Students should access and browse Psychology Review. This is a specialist publication, written for A level Psychology students. All our students can access Psychology Review and the archive going back to 2016. There are four issues every year September, November, February & April.

Read BOTH of the following articles linked below:

Head injuries and criminal behaviour

Introspection and the Emergence of Psychology

Read and write a summary of the main areas addressed in the article.

Consider what was found? Make notes of any findings and any new terminology.

How did they find it? Who were the participants studied? What does it mean?

How else might this be studied?

Please bring these summaries to your first Psychology lesson in September.

The articles will be part of a class discussion so make sure you understand what you've written
