About the Sociology course:

We follow the AQA specification, and study the following topics:

- Education
- Families
- Beliefs in Society
- Crime and deviance
- Theory and Methods

These are divided into three papers, which are each 2-hour exams and make up 100% of your final grades.

You can find the specification here.

"I like sociology because it's given me a wider knowledge of society and it has enabled me to contemplate different views of different classes, ethnicity and gender differences. Since starting sociology I have changed my view on people around me, and now think about why people are how they are, and not just automatically label them in my head. This I feel has made me a better person, and I'm really glad I chose to do sociology."

What do BHS students say about studying A Level Sociology?

"I like a teacher who gives you something to take home and think about besides homework. That's Sociology."

"Sociology is really interesting and helps you to understand what goes on in the world. It opens your eyes to things around you that you may not have been aware of."

"I like sociology because it teaches you about how people interact in the society all around you. It is different to my other subjects because it changed my outlook on society and how things work."

Overleaf are a small handful of preparatory exercises to give you a flavour of the subject and prepare you for what we will study in September.

Introduction

Sociology refers to the study of society – the way people interact together in society, and how society shapes us and our decisions. Studying sociology will help you to understand different perspectives, to write analytic essays and crucially, to understand the same issue can be seen from multiple perspectives.

One of the main issues we study in sociology is equality – how and why society is unequal, and why different people have different chances of succeeding in life. This will be the focus of this work pack.

Sociologists believe society can be broken down into different parts: social institutions. These include: education, the family, the mass media (TV and newspapers), the criminal justice system, health and religion. These different parts work together and play an important role in shaping our lives. They also believe that every society has a culture, which means a way of life, and a set of norms (expected behaviours) and values (what we hold to be important).

How do we become part of society?

Sociologists argue that children go through a process called socialisation, which means learning society's norms and values. At home, children go through primary socialisation, where they learn how to speak, share and other basic behaviours and norms. Secondary socialisation comes later, at school and beyond, where individuals learn from their peers and others.

"Don't use that ring tone with me, young man!"

Our behaviour is influenced by those around us – we are encouraged to conform to society's expectations and norms (obey the rules and do what is expected) and discouraged from deviating from this. These expectations are enforced by sanctions from others – positive sanctions when we do the right thing, eg a smile, a laugh, or a reward, and negative sanctions when we do the wrong thing, a disapproving frown, a shake of the head, or a detention. The way society encourages us to conform and discourages us from deviating is known as social control.

Theoretical perspectives in Sociology

In Sociology, there are a number of different theories about how best to understand society. Below are three of the main different sociological perspectives we will study in our first year:

1. Functionalism: these sociologists believe society runs smoothly, and is made up of different parts which all work together to keep society stable. They believe people agree on what is important (there is a value consensus) and people generally conform to the norms of society. They tend to focus on the positive functions of different parts of society. Watch this video to find out more.
2. Marxism: based on the ideas of Karl Marx, they focus on inequalities based on social class (how much or little money someone has). They believe this is the main inequality in society. They argue there are two main classes: the working class (proletariat) and ruling class (bourgeoisie) and believe the ruling class own and exploit the workers, treating them badly and giving them low pay so they can make more money for themselves. Watch this video and find out more.
3. Feminism: Feminists see gender inequality, inequality between men and women, as the main inequality in society. They argue women are treated badly and exploited by men, and that society is patriarchal (male-dominated). Watch this video to find out more.

Task two: Complete the table to briefly summarise the different perspectives. Try to include any relevant key concepts you picked up on (e.g: consensus, ideology...)

	Summary
Functionalism
Marxism
Feminism

Families and Households

In most modern, western societies, women are starting to see greater equality with men. Women are likely to have a paid job as well as men, and men and women are both likely to contribute to family life and tasks. However, there are still significant inequalities between men and women in the family. Men are usually paid more than women, and so have more power, and women often still complete up to 60% more housework and childcare than men.

Task three: read/ watch the sources below and record the key points. Then, in the box below write maximum of 400 words explaining whether or not family life in the UK is fair in your opinion. Try to use evidence and examples where possible.

Education

While the UK has a state education system, many wealthy parents choose to send their child to an independent school. Independent (private) schools usually cost around £11,565 per term which includes boarding.

Some sociologists also argue ethnic minorities have a worse experience of education, because they experience racism and institutional racism. Some also argue these inequalities are due to differences in the family structures of different ethnicities.

Task four: Read the article in The Guardian and listen to the podcast below to get a better understanding of the inequalities in education. Use the information to write a maximum of 600 words in the box below and overleaf explaining why education in contemporary Britain may not be fair, including which groups may be more disadvantaged.
